PREFACE

This second number of the Document Catalogue is, like the first number, made a dictionary catalogue of the simplest type; all its entries, whether author, subject, or title, in a single alphabet, the Government Departments, bureaus, offices, divisions, commissions, surveys, etc., treated as authors, according to Cutter's rules for corporate entry, and devoid of index, supplement, tables, and other entanglements. In this form the first number was submitted to public criticism with much confidence in the excellence of the system chosen, but also not without a certain anxiety, or at least interest, on the part of the compilers as to what the verdict of the very mixed public who were to use it would be upon the completed work.

This expectancy on their part has been ended by a most gratifying and unanimous demonstration of both popular and expert approval.

The period covered by the present issue of the Document Catalogue is that between July 1, 1895, and June 30, 1896, for all publications not Congressional documents. All Congressional documents numbered as belonging to the first session of the Fifty-fourth Congress are included, no matter at what date they were issued. Many minor publications bearing the date of June, 1896, did not appear till July, 1896, and consequently will wait to be included in the issue of the Catalogue for the fiscal year 1897.

Certain publications of the period of the Fifty-third Congress not included in the Catalogue of that period, either because not in hand or not printed when that Catalogue was prepared, appear in this. Note is also made here of any change in the volumes of the Fifty-third Congressional set subsequent to the publication of the first Document Catalogue.

Every effort has been made to include in the Document Catalogue every publication of the Government, in order that users of it may rely with certainty upon the fact that when a publication does not appear here it failed to get into print during the period covered. It will readily be seen by comparison with Government catalogues issued prior to the establishment of this office that the present volume includes a vast number of Government publications omitted from the earlier catalogues. This is due to the centralization of the document service in this office, which gives facilities never before granted. A very few confidential publications only have been withheld.

Effort has been made to record here every place and form in which a paper has appeared, in order that if one work containing it is wanting for consultation it may be found in some other one at hand. These additional entries, made under the word "Same," formalize and burden the Catalogue, but it is believed that their practical use will be more than an offset.

Titles of documents are given exactly as found on their title-pages or in their heading-titles, with the indispensable liberty taken of condensing the titles by omissions. These omissions are not indicated; all additions, however, are inclosed in brackets, and the order of the words on the title-pages is not disarranged. In the committee reports, which form such a voluminous part of the publications of a Congress, there being no title-page nor heading in distinctive type to serve as a title, the Catalogue entry is made up in a conventional wording incorporating the exact heading-title of the bill or joint resolution on which the report is made, omissions for brevity's sake being freely made in these as in other cases. The titles of pension bills and a few others are expressed according to a conventional form. Simple and concurrent resolutions, having no heading-title, receive a made-up title expressing their contents. If the title of a bill is amended while in committee, the amended title is adopted rather than the original.

The date in entries of Congressional documents, including day, month, and year, is the date on which each document was ordered to be printed; if the year only is given, it is the year of publication. The date given with annual reports, unless otherwise specified, is the Government fiscal year which they cover, extending from July 1 of one calendar year to June 30 of the next, and designated by the calendar year in which it ends; and if a second date follows that of the fiscal year, it is the year of publication, but this is omitted when identical with the fiscal year covered by the report. In citing a report, the fiscal year which it covers is used, rather than the year of publication, e. g.: Education Bureau, Report, 1895, is thus cited although published in 1896.

The publications of each bureau concerning its work are put under the name of the bureau, etc., rather than under the personal name of the chief of the bureau. Any scientific or literary publication of the chief, however, is entered under his personal name. Works not administrative reports, published by a Department, but having an individual author, appear under both Department and author.

Private claims, pension or other, on which a report is made, are as fully indexed here as in the special indexes to private claims heretofore published, and so-called omnibus bills are analyzed. Thus the name of every claimant appears in the Catalogue, or, if not reported on, in the index to the Congressional Record, which thus together supply the same information as the special indexes, and supply it more promptly.

The leading word or words of each entry in this Catalogue will be found printed in a distinctive black-faced type. In many cases a subheading immediately follows the leading word or words. This is printed in a black-faced type of another style. These subheadings are used only where there are many entries under one main heading; they serve to classify the several subjects treated, or as catchwords to facilitate finding the special subject sought. When the leading word or words in black type denote the subject, the name of the author, whether that author be personal or departmental, is given in SMALL CAPITALS, either following the main heading alone or that and a subheading. When the leading words in black type are the name of the author of the document, whether such author be a person or a public office, such leading words may be followed by a subject subheading in the secondary style of black-faced type, but never by a subheading in small capitals. However, a person or bureau may appear as author in certain entries and as subject in certain others, these entries being not always separately arranged. It is sufficient to say that SMALL CAPITALS are used for the author-personal or departmental-and for nothing else, and that where they appear in an entry the leading words always stand as the subject of which that author writes, although in other entries these same words may again themselves stand as author.

Following are examples, respectively, of entries where (1) the leading words are the name of the author, followed by a subject subheading, and (2) where the same leading words are used as subject, followed by a subject subheading and then by the name of the author in small capitals:

Navy Department. Accounts. Statement of expenditures of contingent appropriations of Department. 1895. Feb. 12, 1896. 22 pp. (House doc. 230, 54th Cong. 1st sess. In v. 58.)

Navy Department. Accounts. Auditor for Navy Department. Annual report, 1895. 19 pp. (Treas. Dept. doc. 1798.)

Of the suggestions in regard to the Catalogue tendered to the compilers in response to their printed request, the only one which it has proved practicable to follow is in the case of the voluminous reports of standing committees of the Senate and House. In this Catalogue the reports of each committee are entered in full under the name of that committee. This insures continuity in successive catalogues for the work of each committee and answers the most usual inquiry for reports, which is for a report made by a certain committee. Exceedingly full references are given under the name of each Senator and Representative, by means of which every report or paper presented by him can be easily found.

An addition in this Catalogue is that the analysis of the larger documents has been carried further than in last year's issue. In the report of the Chief of Engineers of the Army, for instance, only the volumes were catalogued last year, but this year each individual report is entered under both author and subject. This change has also been made as to some other important documents.

Attention is called to the fact that the present publication, the Document Catalogue, includes all Government publications, while the companion volume issued from this office, the Document Index, embraces only the documents numbered in the Congressional set.

Miss Edith E. Clarke, as chief cataloguer, has borne the burden of the work in compiling the second volume as she did in compiling the first.

F. A. CRANDALL, Superintendent of Documents.

Bulletin. Note.—Bulletin 56 was originally designed to be a new edition of Bulletin 10, Import Duties of Cuba and Puerto Rico, but this was never published. Import Duties of Guatemala, supplement, which is numbered Bulletin 69, is to stand in this vacant place and be called Bulletin 56, as the number 69 will be given to the Manual de las Repúblicas Americanas. The title Bulletin 59 has been assigned by the bureau to Commercial Information, Bulletin 41, as reprinted in the 6-volume edition of Bulletins, although there also it bears only the title Bulletin 41. The Republic of Costa Rica is incorrectly listed in the Comprehensive Index of Publications of the United States Government, 1889-93, as Bulletin 68. It has no number, being a special bulletin taking the place of the Monthly Bulletin for Apr. 1894. The 2d, 3d, and 4th annual reports of the bureau, for 1892, 1893, and 1894, are Bulletin 52, 73, and 74 respectively. Bulletins 65,66,68, 70, 75-79 are not yet published.

Bills.

Note.—Bills and resolutions are not catalogued directly, except in the rare cases where a special edition is printed for general distribution. The committee reports on them embody in the catalogue entry the exact title of the bill, and serve as complete substitutes for cataloguing the bills themselves. The following directions refer to these report entries as equivalent to bill entries. Considering bills and resolutions in 4 classes, class 1 are the large number which are presented to Congress, but on which no committee report is made, and which do not become law. Class 2 are the very few on which no committee reports but which become law notwithstanding. Class 3 are those on which a committee reports and which become law thereafter. For class 1 consult the index of the Congressional Record. Class 2, 3, and 4 can be found under the subject of the bill, class 3 and 4 also under the committee making the report, and by reference, under the Senator or Representative making the report. Class 2 and 4 have appended to the entries the pages in the Statutes at Large where the text of the bill passed into law can be found.

Congressional documents list. Beginning with the 54th Congress, the miscellaneous and the executive documents are combined and called, all together, documents. The simple and concurrent resolutions, which formerly made a large proportion of the miscellaneous documents, are taken out and issued each in its own separate numbered series, as bills and joint resolutions are. Only those of the 53d Congress documents which did not appear in the Docu-ment Catalogue of the 53d Congress are given here. The number in brackets appended to each volume is its serial number continuous with those given in the Public Documents Checklist. The journals of both Houses will be omitted in future from this numbering. A numerical list, giving the subject of each document and report in order, will be found in future in the Document Index, beginning with the 2d session of the 54th Congress.]

Topographic sheets

Note.—These maps, here issued separately, appear again in the folios of the Geologic Atlas, and also serve as bases of the geologic maps. They are successive steps in the topographic mapping of the whole United States. Each sheet covers a quadrangular section of country bounded by parallels and meridians, and named from some prominent feature of the section. The scales used, 1:62,500, 1:125,000, correspond approximately to 1 mile, 2 miles, and 4 miles to the linear inch. The width, always given second, varies with the latitude from 11½ to 16 inches.

United States, topographic index map showing condition of surveying and engraving of topographic maps on Jan 1, 1896. Scale 1:2,500,000. 48.37×76.87 in., in 9 sheets.

Alabama, Birmingham sheet, lat. 33° 30′-34°, long. 86° 30′-87°. Scale 1:125,000, contour interval 100 ft. Edition of Aug. 1895. 17.5 ×

Arizona, Chino sheet, lat. 35°-36°, long. 112°-113° Scale 1:250,000, contour interval 250 ft. [1896.] 17.5×14.37 in.

NOTE.—So-called orders to print public documents are generally simple, concurrent, or joint resolutions, but may be bills. They appear in this catalogue under the Printing Committees of Senate and House, and the author, or Department, bureau, etc., standing as author of each publication. Orders to print do not appear under subjects. Those which did not become law, but on which a report was printed, appear only under the Printing Committees. Those on which no report was printed and which did not become law, follow the rule for other bills and resolutions under the same conditions, and do not appear at all in the catalogue.

NOTE.—So-called orders to print public documents are generally simple, concurrent, or joint resolutions, but may be bills. They appear in this catalogue under the Printing Committees of Senate and House, and the author, or Department, bureau, etc., standing as author, of each publication. Orders to print do not appear under subjects. Those which did not become law, but on which a report was printed, appear only under the Printing Committees. Those on which no report was printed and which did not become law, follow the rule for other bills and resolutions under the same conditions, and do not appear at all in the catalogue.

Resolutions.

Note.—Bills and resolutions, simple, concurrent, and joint, are not catalogued directly, except in the rare cases where a special edition is printed for general distribution. The catalogue entries for the committee reports on them embody the exact title of the bill, and serve as complete substitutes for cataloguing the bills themselves. The following directions refer to these reportentries as equivalent to bill entries. Considering bills and resolutions in 4 classes, class 1 are the large number which are presented to Congress, but on which no committee report is made, and which do not become law. Class 2 are the very few on which no committee reports, but which become law notwithstanding. Class 3 are those on which a committee reports and which become law thereafter. For class 1 consult the index of the Congressional Record. Class 2, and 4 can be found under the subject of the bill, class 3 and 4 under the committee making the report also, and by reference under the Senator or Representative making the report. Class 2 and 4 have appended to the entries the pages in the Statutes at Large where the text of the bill passed into law can be found.
